

Be inspired

2010 is an invitation to be inspired to witness to Christ today.

Across the world, the Christian Church will be gathering together in a huge variety of different ways and settings to celebrate and be inspired by mission in the 21st Century.

How can I be involved?

Churches in Britain and Ireland invite you to join with groups of Christians around the world and hold your own local celebration of joy, thanksgiving and commitment to mission in June 2010. How could you bring the people in your community together to remember, celebrate and be inspired?

It could be:

- a joint service with other worshipping communities in your area
- a community wide outreach event
- a chance to serve your community with other churches
- a youth night / a praise and prayer event
- a neighbourhood movie night / a local missionary talk

Edinburgh 2010 World Missions Centenary Conference 2-6 June

250 church and mission leaders from all over the world will come to Edinburgh in 2010 as a culmination of ten years global conversation - a springboard for addressing how the Church can be more effective in 21st century mission. Focussing on 9 major themes, delegates will meet in Edinburgh to share stories of how mission is taking place across the globe. Information at: www.edinburgh2010.org

6 June 2010

Edinburgh's celebration of Mission will be held on Sunday 6th June 2010 – the culmination of the Edinburgh Conference. We invite you to mark this momentous occasion in your local Church and community. It might be a special event, or linked into an already existing local programme. However you decide to celebrate, we'd love to hear about it so please let us know (contact details below).

Remember

2010 is an invitation to join worldwide remembrance and reflection.

In 1910 Edinburgh became host to over 1,200 mainly Protestant Christians from across the English-speaking world, gathering together to think strategically about the worldwide mission of the Christian Church. In a rapidly changing social, economic and religious global environment, Church leaders and mission societies from across the Western world gathered in recognition that Christian mission in the new century would require a much greater unity of purpose, vision and responsibility. God's Church would need to be drawn together by a common purpose to reach every corner of the world with the love of Christ.

Churches in Britain and Ireland invite the Christian family to remember the 1910 World Missionary Conference; to reflect on how Mission has changed in the last 100 years; and, to be inspired for Mission in the 21st century.

mission on the streets

The International Missionary Conference was a hugely historic event – an extraordinary spectacle – which helped to start the modern ecumenical movement.

Celebrate

2010 is an invitation to join a worldwide celebration of modern-day mission.

Much has changed in the last 100 years. While the 1910 conference was largely white, western and male in attendance, in 2010 we can celebrate the huge diversity of the modern church. Christianity has spread across the world, transforming cultures and societies in every continent – transforming individual lives with the love of Christ.

mission together

mission with the elderly

In 2010 we can celebrate 100 years of Christian mission moving between continents and nations. From north to south and east to west the message of Christ has been shared by Christians from every race, colour, tribe and tongue. Through discipleship training new Christians have been equipped to defend the poor and fight for justice, resisting racism and working for reconciliation.

In 2010 the global church shall come together in a variety of different countries, churches, denominations and groups to celebrate together what God has done through his missional Church and celebrate all that God will do in the future.

mission in the community

Churches in Britain and Ireland invite the Christian family to come together and celebrate our Mission today.
